Introduction

Introducing the tableware collection by designer Rebecca Pailles-Friedman. This stoneware tableware set draws inspiration from New York's Hudson Valley landscape, capturing its organic shapes and earthy tones seen in the grassy pastures and wildflowers. Each piece is handcrafted and fired with our studio's unique glazes that mirror the landscape's colors.

For those familiar with her farm, Rebecca enjoys hosting friends for relaxed gatherings with small plates, salads, and mains. This collection started as her personal table setting for these occasions. The highlight is the stacking serve pieces that form the table's centerpiece. The handmade plates and bowls have an asymmetrical, rustic charm, inviting you to freely combine and stack them to explore your own creativity. The tactile appeal is irresistible.

"As a designer, I focus on crafting small batch ceramics that showcase the material's beauty, blending form and color with practical functionality—a fusion of aesthetics and usefulness."

Plates & Bowls

Each piece is made one at a time. The process we use for most pieces is called hand building. We roll out our high quality dark brown stoneware clay into thin (but not too thin) slabs. The canvas material they are rolled with leaves a subtle texture on the bottom, while we smooth the top. The slabs are cut and formed either by hand for the plates or over plaster hump molds and left to dry until they are leather hard. They are hand trimmed and sponged for a fine finish. When bone dry they have their first firing. We glaze each piece and fire again to over 2200 degrees.

The plates and bowls are glazed using a dip and pour technique making each piece unique and the noted sizes are approximate and will have variation. They are glazed on the inner surface of the bowl leaving the edge and outer surface the clays natural color. Each piece is finished with Rebecca's hand written initials on the bottom. Finally, our one of a kind plates and bowls where you can not only see but feel her hands are now ready to be sanded, cleaned, wrapped and packed.

The ceramics made in the studio are all crafted by hand. Each piece goes through many stages as it travels from wet clay to the finished piece. Crafting cermaics is often an unpredictable process, where no two pieces are ever exactly the same. This uniqueness is where we find beauty.

CERAMIC CARE

Our ceramics are handcrafted from durable, high quality stoneware. Our glazes are food safe and lead free. Although all of our pieces are dishwasher safe, hand washing will prolong the life cycle of your pottery. Dirt, stains, and metal marks from silverware (due to the ceramic being harder than the metal) particularly on our matte and semi-matte glazes, can be removed with Bar Keeper's Friend, Mr. Clean Magic Eraser, or baking soda mixed with a bit of warm water. Our tableware can be warmed in the oven but do not expose the wares to dramatic shifts in temperature – e.g. do not put hot from the oven pieces into the refrigerator or from the freezer into a hot oven- allow for gradual change in temperature. Do not place over an open flame.

SUGGESTIONS

I suggest a set 2 of dinner & breakfast/dessert plates with pasta bowls with a nesting set of 3 stackables as a great place to start. Custom orders can be requested via email.

LEAD TIME

Each set is made to order (with our hands) and will take between 3 - 12 weeks to ship, depending on the quantity of sets ordered and our current production schedule. Email us for information about our current lead time, or for any other questions before ordering.

SHIPPING & RETURNS

Though we do have some stock in the studio, most items are made to order. Please allow 15 business days to ship. Larger orders may take longer. If your order will take longer than 15 business days we will send you an email providing an estimated ship date. We ship all of our products within the Continental United States from our studio in Livingston, NY via UPS Ground. Once your order is shipped we will provide you with a tracking number via e-mail.

We accept returns for exchange or store credit only. Because all of our pieces are made by hand there will be slight imperfections and variations that we do not see as flaws, but instead make our products uniquely ours. All of the items made at our studio are inspected for defects before they are shipped out. It is important to us that our customers are happy with our products. If you are not satisfied with your purchase we will work to find you a perfect replacement or issue you a store credit. Custom items are final sale.
